...and now, on this day, all has been said and done. It is what it is. But John, one thing is certain: the man you were, the things you did, all you accomplished, and everything else you shared with us...we shall keep in our hearts, and cherish. These beautiful memories will continue to exist, for as long as we're granted them.

Death creates life, and any ending is also a call for a new beginning. With our heads raised high, and with faith in our own abilities, we will face a new future.

The people surrounding you now, together with our loved ones, not only embrace you, but also embrace life.

We celebrate life. Or like you said yourself, so short and to the point:
'Celebrate life - det môt!'
